French Embassy Research Fellowships

The Embassy of France in Turkey is launching three fellowships for the year 2018:

- Fellowship for PhD students
- Fellowship for Young Visiting Researchers (Submission up to 3 years after acceptance in a PhD program)
- Fellowship for Visiting Researchers

France and Turkey have an historical cooperation in the field of higher education and research. The French Embassy has supported the implementation of several structural bilateral programs such as the PHC Bosphorus, the TÜBİTAK-ANR funding program for research, the French Institute for Anatolian Studies (IFEA), and the French Government Fellowships. Numerous cooperation agreements exist between universities from both countries, and the French-Turkish Galatasaray University is amongst the most prestigious Higher Education institutions in Turkey.

It is a priority for the Embassy of France to foster new collaborations opportunities between Turkish and French researchers in order to enhance and maintain a fruitful relationship between our two countries.

This fellowship call constitutes a new opportunity for Turkish researchers to associate themselves with French teams at different stages of their academic career. These high level scholarships are designed with the aim of forging new links that should be the starting point of long-lasting and broader scientific collaborations.

The Embassy of France in Turkey offers fellowships to applicants who intend to go further in their collaboration with a French academic institution.
